Chapter 1 by Jrsb 06.gamer

There was once a little girl. She was going to the thrift shop with her grandma to get a toy. When they got there the girl asked the worker for a little doll. The worker said, "over there on that shelf." "Ok, thanks," said the girl. The girl was so excited... but she shouldn't be... They went home because it was getting late and almost time for bed.

The girl loved the doll so much. But the doll didn't love her... the doll wanted to murder her. By the time they got home, the little girl realized something. The doll's name... was BONES. She said, "oh that's just probably the worker that named it. He did look pretty... you know... dark." So they got home, brushed their teeth, and of course, went to bed.

The girl was getting kind of nervous. She still put the doll right beside her pillow. Then, in the middle of the night, the girl woke up and right in front of her... bones was standing. She tried to go to sleep, and eventually fell asleep. The next day, she woke up and bones was gone. She breathed a HUGE breath of relief. But she saw that the vent was open... She thought that breath of relief was too soon. The girl knew where the vents lead to . So she went in her grandma's room. She saw the doll and heard flesh getting munched on. She went to the bed, and all she saw was a pile of blood, flesh and bones, and she saw him... "AAAAAAAAAH!" screams the girl. She tried to run, but all was left was a pile of flesh, blood, and bones.
